Conclusion: Babylon give them a ride :

Blackness in contemporary Bermuda.

"A transnational, Pan-African youth movement,

Black power in Bermuda sought freedom for Blacks from the island's White oligarchy and independence from British colonialism. It was spearheaded by activists such as Pauulu Kamarakafego and the Black Beret Cadre.

The Cadre maintained relationships with revolutionary organizations across the African diaspora, such as the Black Panthers. Emerging in the late 1960s, the movement witnessed the assassinations of Bermuda's British chief of police and governor (1972-1973). Swan carefully details the island's colonial government's attempts to destroy the movement through military tactics, extensive propaganda, and the implementation of token social concessions"--Provided by publisher.

record of two visits to Bermuda; one in 1938 and one apparently in 1948. The first film shows Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Dickinson leave New York on the S.S. Queen of Bermuda on November 19, 1938, their arrival at The Horizons guest house, and documents their travels around various destinations in Bermuda. The photographer of the second film is unknown. This film is of a poorer quality but seems to be the record of the holiday of a couple staying at the Castle Harbour Hotel. Presents scenes of beaches and harbours, cycling around Bermuda, the towns of St. George's and Hamilton, riding on the Bermuda Railway and other places the two couples visited during their holidays.
